Area-wide 'Listening Tour' unites communities

Westland Mayor William R. Wild spoke to the Conference of Western Wayne members during a meeting announcing the Listening Tours designed to promote racial equality which took place last week.

The 18 Conference of Western Wayne (CWW) mayors and supervisors, Western Wayne County police chiefs and Western Wayne County NAACP officials today announced the "Partnerships for Progress Listening Tour", a new collaborative effort to bring open conversation and active listening to the Western Wayne County region in light of ongoing protests around S.E. Michigan seeking new discussions and reform in our communities.

The group met June 16 in Westland City Hall to announce planned listening meetings in the CWW region.

The goal is for community members to be able to ask police and elected officials questions, share stories and offer ideas for solutions and change. The Listening Tour meetings are an extension of ongoing discussions that recently began between Western Wayne police chiefs and the Western Wayne County NAACP.

The first meeting took place in Livonia yesterday.

"We realized that for far too long, many members of the community felt like they have not been heard by the elected officials and law enforcement in their communities. The recent killing of unarmed Black people and the resulting global protest says it is time to do something different," said Gina Wilson Steward, Western Wayne County NAACP president.

To accommodate social distancing required due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the events are limited to 100 people attending in-person, and PPE will be provided. Those wanting to attend in-person can access registration information at www.c-w-w.org. There are no restrictions on who can attend, but in order to ensure COVID-19 safety and compliance, pre-registration is required.

For those who cannot attend, the event will be livestreamed via Facebook Live at www.facebook.com/conferenceofwesternwayne

The meetings will include time for questions to encourage an all-encompassing conversation, officials said. Community members who register can submit proposed questions and/or statements in advance via the C-W-W.org registration page.

The events will be moderated by Daicia Price, LMSW, a member of the Detroit-Wayne County Crisis Intervention Team, which supports collaborative efforts to sustain more effective interactions between law enforcement and the communities they serve.

Gina Wilson Steward, Western Wayne County NAACP President:

"The leadership of the Western Wayne County NAACP began our Conversations with Police Chiefs last week because we must continue to work to change policies so that Black people can live without the fear of being stopped, arrested or killed by police officers.

"The information shared between the Police Chiefs and the questions asked by the community proved that more conversations need to be had. We partnered with the Conference of Western Wayne to continue our Listening Tour. We believe that continuing to learn what happens when police officers interact with Black people will help us determine which changes police chiefs and elected officials can implement that will benefit the lives of Black people," Wilson said.

Belleville Mayor Kerreen Conley, CWW chairwoman said the events fill a need in the area.

"The message we have consistently received from the organized protestors in the Western Wayne County region is that they need to be heard. As elected officials and police chiefs, we understand that necessity and we hear you. This is the time for open and honest discussion and communication that can facilitate real change. The Partners for Progress Listening Tour will give community members the ability to ask the questions they need answered, to share their stories and to also offer ideas for solutions.

"We know that we need to give people the opportunity to be heard and we need to listen to them. Our intent with these tours is to create an environment in which all parties feel comfortable to express their concerns, questions and ideas for change," she said.

City of Westland Police Chief Jeff Jedrusik was also in favor of the planned meetings.

"We see this as an opportunity for both the Western Wayne

Hiking, biking trails now officially open in Northville

Nature enthusiasts have a whole new area to explore following the official opening last week of new biking and hiking trails in Northville Township.

Township officials officially dedicated the new trails, located at the end of the Seven Mile property in the township last Friday and area residents will now be able to enjoy acres of wooded property.

Township officials agreed to partner with Motor City Mountain Biking Association (MCMBA) members who created the several miles of biking trails and a mile-long hiking trail during the past year. The trailhead is accessed off Wayne Avenue and weaves through the 50-acre woodlands west of the Hawthorne Center along Haggerty Road. Parking is available along Wayne Avenue and across Haggerty Road in the Schoolcraft College parking lot, officials said.

The MCMBA club members and bikers created the trails with contributions from REI, Cooper Standard and other donors. The organization, represented by Jeff Oles, Loren Konkus and Scott Silver, constructed a trailhead sign and both trails - named Chinkapin (for hiking) and Belle Creek Branch (for biking). Trail names were chosen for their historic connection to the park, officials noted and maps of the trails are posted on the trailhead and on the MCMBA website at www.mcmba.org . A picnic table has been installed and benches will be built for the area as soon as feasible.

Plans are also under way for a connection to the trails on the West end of the Seven Mile property, which will make much of the park available to the residents. Opening of the western end is anticipated for fall this year, officials said. Still unavailable for use is the area where old buildings remain. Those structures will be removed as finances become available for the demolition work necessary, according to a township spokesman.

Northville Township officials also announced a contest to name the entire park that is open to residents aged 10 to 110+ years.

"It is time the property had an official name following its

Chaos continues in Sumpter treasurer's office

The dispute between Sumpter Township Treasurer Kenneth Bednark and the members of the board of trustees continued last week when Bednark announced he was closing the treasurer's office on Mondays and Fridays.

On Tuesday, he rescinded that directive and agreed to allow the deputy supervisor access to his office to help process the backlog of checks received in payment for water bills and or taxes that he had refused to open or process.

Members of the board unanimously voted to file legal action against the treasurer earlier this month if he failed to comply with his statutory duty and process the growing number of unprocessed payments. Following an exchange of correspondence, Bednark said he disagreed with the board but would begin to process the payments.

In what some board members interpreted as retaliation, however, Bednark emailed Supervisor John Morgan this week announcing that the treasurer's office would be closed to the public on Mondays and Fridays. In that email, Bednark said, "Be aware that outside of statutory hours during tax collection cycles, it is the treasurer that sets these hours without respect to the building hours set by the supervisor." Bednark also informed the board members that "Due to business and personal commitments" he will no longer come into township hall to perform his statutory duties, but would be managing the office from his home.

In a follow-up correspondence, responding to Morgan's threat of legal action, Bednark said he would allow the deputy supervisor to help in his office to clear the backlog of payments which he has consistently blamed on a lack of staffing.

> Bednark, who has not attended a board meeting in four months but continues to collect his more than $19,000 annual salary, also restricted access to his office.

The controversy has raged since May 27 when Bednark declared that opening of payment envelopes mailed to the Sumpter Water Department was not his statutory duty and announced that his office staff would no longer open payment envelopes.

In an effort to resolve the controversy, members of the township board of trustees met June 2 and unanimously voted to officially assign the duty of opening water department payments to the treasurer's office.

Bednark refused to comply with that directive which prompted continued complaints from residents regarding uncashed checks and piles of opened and unopened payments overflowing in the treasurer's office vault. Board members met again June 9 and unanimously authorized legal action to force the treasurer to comply with his statutory duties.

Bednark, who has not attended a board meeting in four months but continues to collect his more than $19,000 annual salary, also restricted access to his office.

"The Board of Trustees must recognize it cannot usurp power over the treasurer by dictating who comes in the treasurer's secured space and/or when, only the treasurer has this authority. I have notified my staff that it is expressly prohibited for anyone to enter the treasurer's office to work without the treasurer's prior written consent and furthermore, the treasurer or the deputy treasurer must be present during access periods. Any unauthorized attempt to breach the treasurer's office will be met with legal action," he stated.

Bednark was responding to Morgan's reminder that legal action against him was pending.

Canton police rated for national re-accreditation

The Canton Township Police Department welcomed some special 'virtual' visitors this week as the team of assessors from the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, Inc. (CALEA) began an examination into all aspects of the Canton department policies and procedures, management, operations, and support services.

As part of their assessment, members of the community and agency personnel participated in a virtual public information webinar last Tuesday. Members of the public who could not join the virtual webinar were offered the opportunity to provide comments to the assessment team by phone. All comments online or by phone were limited to 10 minutes, and were required to address the police department ability to comply with CALEA standards. A copy of the CALEA standards can be obtained from the police department CALEA Program Manager, Deputy Chief Craig Wilsher at (734) 394-5424 or cwilsher@canton-mi.org.

Individuals who prefer to offer written comments regarding the ability of the police department to meet the standards for reaccreditation may send them to: CALEA, 13575 Heathcoat Blvd., Suite 320, Gainesville, Virginia, 20155.

> The team of assessors assigned to Canton are experienced law enforcement practitioners.

The team of assessors assigned to Canton are experienced law enforcement practitioners from similar, but out-of-state agencies, and include: Chief Carl Schinner, La Plata (MD) Police Department and Sgt. Greta Kay Mallard, Wilmington (NC) Police Department. In addition to accepting public comments, the assessors will review written materials, interview individuals, and virtually tour offices and locations where compliance can be witnessed.

The assessors will report their findings to the Commission Board, who will then determine if the Canton Police Department has met the CALEA standards necessary to be awarded the prestigious recognition of reaccreditation for their delivery of law enforcement excellence. The department received its original award in 2007, and has maintained reaccreditation since then.

For more information regarding the Commission on Law Enforcement Agencies Inc., visit www.calea.org.

Township planning to refund or pro-rate program fees

As a result of Canton Township facility closures to combat the spread of COVID-19, Canton Leisure Service managers have established processes to issue refunds and credits to those who paid for memberships and programs.

All Summit on the Park memberships, including Kids' Corner memberships, will be extended for the duration of the closure, and all monthly membership payments will be credited upon the facility reopening. Should Summit members have any questions during this closure, they can email the Membership Services Team at summitmemberservices@canton-mi.org.

Participants who have registered for a Leisure Services class, program, or event that was canceled before the intended start date will receive a refund or credit to their household account.

Participants who were enrolled in a class or program that was currently in session will be prorated once these programs return.

Facility rentals scheduled to take place during the closures are canceled and will be fully refunded.

The Village Theater at Cherry Hill will automatically be issuing full refunds to ticket-holders for performances canceled during this time-frame. Ticket purchases paid by credit or debit card will be refunded directly back to that card. Ticket purchases paid by check or cash will be refunded by check and will be contacted to confirm the correct mailing address.

All account refunds and credits will be processed as soon as Leisure Services staff returns to work. Residents should expect some delays and allow additional time for all transactions to be processed, due to high volume. While there is no need to contact the department individually to request these account credits and refunds, questions can be sent by email to leisure@canton-mi.org and the staff will respond as soon as possible, officials said.

Rally for peace

Demonstrations take place downtown and at Ford Field

The City of Northville was the site of two peaceful demonstrations last week to call attention to the Black Lives Matter movement, protest police brutality across the nation, and rally against racism in the United States.

The Black Lives Matter rally took place Friday, June 12, at Ford Field. It was organized by Northville High School graduate Natalie Turner, who now attends Northwestern University. An estimated 1,000 - 1,200 people attended, according to police estimates. After the initial gathering, the group marched near city hall and through downtown, chanting "No Justice, No Peace" and other slogans of the movement, holding up hand-lettered signs to emphasize their views. Returning to Ford Field, protesters sat on the grass and listened as speakers, many in their 20s, shared stories of what it is like to be black or to live in a society that condones racism. In memory of the suffocation death of George Floyd at the hands of Minneapolis police, the protesters knelt for eight minutes and 46 seconds in honor of his life and to express sorrow at the cause of his death.

The One World Family: A Demonstration for Unity drew approximately 150 people to the park behind city hall on Saturday, June 13. Organized by local moms under the leadership of Margaret Shoesmith, the event rallied community support for anti-racism. Student/activist Morgan Stephens was one of the speakers. Northville Mayor Brian Turnbull addressed the crowd, saying he is committed to overcoming racism. He signed an oversized copy of a document called "My Brother's Keeper," which he said will be hung in city hall.

Northville Police Chief Alan Maciag talked to the crowd about police use of force in the city, noting that the department was one of the first in the area to use body-worn cameras, which documents and records officers' contacts with citizens.

He said a key to good policing is the hiring of police officers.

"You want to hire people that conduct themselves with ethics, integrity and respect, and act professionally. They are held accountable if they don't follow through," he said of the Northville officers.

He explained that the city police officers are trained annually in anti-bias, gender-bias, community engagement and verbal de-escalation. In Northville, officers have a duty to intervene if excessive force is used by a fellow officer, he said. In addition, the Northville Police Department voluntarily reports the use of force to the FBI National Use of Force data collection site.

"It's important to have a strong bond with the community and be transparent," said Maciag. He invited anyone who has questions or wants to discuss polices to contact him.

Most of those in the crowds at each gathering wore masks and kept a social distance to minimize the risk of catching or spreading COVID-19.

Officers from both Northville Township and the city were present at each of the events and provided traffic control at the Friday event due to the large crowd and march through downtown.

Day of Joy

Caregivers surprise senior clients with flowers in celebration event

The National Day of Joy was celebrated in Plymouth yesterday when 65 individuals were surprised with flowers from their caretakers.

Comfort Keepers founded the National Day of Joy to help individuals find joy in everyday moments. Too often, officials said, the pursuit of joy is relegated to the background of people's lives as they tackle their day-to-day responsibilities, said Joanne Darga, community liaison at Comfort Keepers in Plymouth.

Finding joy, she said, no matter your age is important for maintaining physical and mental health and overall well being.

Comfort Keepers® of Plymouth is a provider of in-home care for seniors and other adults. Caregivers have continued to care for clients and provide support to seniors and their families through the Coronavirus pandemic. They serve Plymouth, Canton, Belleville, Westland, Garden City, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Livonia and Redford.

Comfort Keepers caregivers have been deemed essential workers during the pandemic when more seniors find they are in need of assistance at home. Comfort Keepers caregivers run errands, shop for groceries, provide companionship and personal care, and complete other tasks that help seniors stay at home to avoid illness.

In addition, caregivers help seniors stay connected to their loved ones and keep seniors engaged and active physically, mentally and socially, Darga said.

"For seniors looking for help during this time, an in-home caregiver can be an amazing resource," said Darga.

"At Comfort Keepers, we believe that there is no higher calling than bringing joy, purpose and independence to seniors that want to stay safe at home. While some businesses have had to close due to the pandemic, caregivers provide an essential health function. We are excited to talk to anyone that thinks they or their senior loved one could benefit from uplifting in-home care," she added.

Comfort Keepers caregivers complete extensive training to provide the best care for families, according to Darga. More information is available at (734)397-1111, or https://www.comfortkeepers.com/ offices/michigan/plymouth.

Township claims former employee's candidacy violates agreement

Don Howard
Staff Writer

Plymouth Township officials claim that a former deputy township clerk is breaching the contract she signed as a condition of her severance.

Sandra Groth is a candidate for township clerk and her name will appear on the Aug. 4 Primary Election ballot. Groth, formerly a township employee, filed her petition to replace current Clerk Jerry Vorva this past January. After a years-long absence, Groth was appointed by Vorva to the deputy clerk position in 2017 and she served in that capacity for 2-1/2 years.

Vorva and Township Supervisor Kurt Heise said when Groth's candidacy became public, they asked township labor attorney John Clark to render a legal opinion regarding the status of the severance agreement. Clark reportedly claimed Groth violated the separation agreement, by declaring her candidacy and he subsequently sent two letters to her in care of her (at-one-time) attorney.

According to Heise, legal action is a possibility.

Neither Heise nor Vorva would disclose the terms of Groth's separation or discuss the nature of any grievance.

"Running for office is the same as seeking employment," Heise said." By virtue of his position, the township supervisor is responsible for all contracts and labor agreements."

> Everyone has a constitutional right to run for office. That's not disparaging--that's fact.

Vorva and Heise both allege Groth is now making disparaging remarks about them on social media.

Groth posted "…The reality is that Supervisor Heise spent taxpayer funds to have the Township labor attorney threaten to have me removed from the ballot and threatened me further by suggesting additional legal action against me if I continue my candidacy..."

Heise, who bristled at those comments, denied there was any attempt to take Groth off the ballot. He said the purpose of the separation agreement "was to have an amicable separation with Sandy."

"I take that seriously and it's not true that she accuses me of using taxpayer money to retain a lawyer. She has violated one of the terms of the agreement. No one has made any attempt to take her off the ballot."

Vorva, who would not comment on Groth's past performance record, says she is making "allegations in the public domain that that we're using taxpayer money to remove her from the ballot, and disparaging comments about my fight with cancer."

In a conversation with the Eagle, Groth acknowledged she resigned "under duress" and claimed she did not breach any agreement. She would not discuss the reasons for her exit.

"That's not what it said," referring to the officials' claim of disparagement, "That's wrong. I didn't breach the agreement.

"Everyone has a constitutional right to run for office. That's not disparaging--that's fact." Groth said.

Commission OK's plan for development at former Saxton's location

Members of the Plymouth City Commission approved the first reading of a Planned Unit Development (PUD) agreement with the Jewell Maple development team during their online Zoom meeting June 15.

The planned development is set for the area commonly known as the Saxton's property. Commissioners also approved a month-to-month lease agreement with the Jewell Maple development team on the Jewell Blaich building located on the property at Ann Arbor Trail across from Kellogg Park.

A second reading of the proposal is scheduled for the July 6 commission meeting.

Commissioners also approved the rezoning of 900 York St. from Light Industrial to Single-Family Residential at the second reading for the proposed change. The property owner is planning to build two single-family homes at the site.

The Commission awarded the 2020 Infrastructure Program contract to low-bidder Pro-Line Asphalt. The bid came in at just more than $1.8 million, nearly $400,000 under the city engineer's estimate of $2.2 million for the project. The contract includes scheduled 2020 improvements on parts of Farmer Street, Main Street, Evergreen Street, Ann Street and continued concrete replacement on Junction Street.

Commissioners also approved the purchase of an attachment for the new city-owned Swap Loader truck. The Swap Loader has been referred to as a "Swiss Army Knife" style truck that allows for multiple attachments to handle various needs of the department of municipal services. The approved attachment is an Anti-Icing attachment that will be used to spread salt brine during the winter season, officials said. Brine was used in the city for the first time last winter season and produced successful results, commissioners commented.

The next city commission meeting is scheduled for July 6 at Lions Park at Burroughs and Harding streets.

WAYNE - WESTLAND

Wayne celebrates Veterans' Memorial groundbreaking

Years of planning took one more step toward project completion last week as the City of Wayne officially broke ground for the Veterans' Memorial in the city.

The monument will be installed on the south side of Wayne City Hall on Wayne Road and officials said the city will document the entire project from the groundbreaking to the final dedication as part of the city archives.

Numerous donations made the monument possible, including nearly $30,000 from military service veterans, members of the UAW Local 900 and Ford Motor Co. While the original plan was to renovate and repair the Peach Memorial near the downtown parking structure and library, donors suggested a memorial specifically dedicated to honoring veterans, a suggestion the city quickly adopted.

When the UAW Local 845 office was moved to Wayne from Canton Township, members there suggested they transport the veterans memorial from their site to Wayne, another suggestion that was welcomed by organizers and city officials.

> "Many of these brave souls died, were declared missing in action, or taken prisoner of war.

The project needed about $50,000 in addition to the donations already in place to fund the preparing the ground, pouring concrete, moving the existing monument from Canton to Wayne, the placement of the monuments, a flagpole placement, a bench and other miscellaneous costs. The groundbreaking last week was also a celebration of the participation of all those who donated to the project, officials said.

Several officials from the city, including Mayor John Rhaesa, spoke during the groundbreaking of the significance of the monument and the example of community spirit the project represents.he Wayne Veterans Memorial will be, "a lasting tribute for the many veterans who served their country. Many of these brave souls died, were declared missing in action, or taken prisoner of war. It is incumbent on all to honor our veterans, both past and present, as we would not be enjoying the freedom we have today without their sacrifice," according to promotional literature from the city.

The city will designate several parking spaces near the memorial for use of veterans.

Westland to 'clean up' language in massage parlor city ordinance

Massage parlors in Westland will soon face much stricter regulations and requirements according to revisions proposed for licensing in the city.

Members of the Westland City Council approved several amendments related to the regulation of massage parlors during the June 15 meeting. The changes follow a moratorium prohibiting any new massage parlors and other new massage type activities from opening in the city. Council members are expected to review a request to rescind the moratorium at the July 6 meeting.

"The moratorium was imposed to give us time to modify the ordinances to better regulate massage parlors during a period of time when we saw an influx in requests for these establishments," commented Moe Ayoub, Westland planning director.

The amendments and modifications to the licensing requirements will aid in the further enforcement of the Massage Therapists Act and prevent illegal massage, human trafficking, prostitution and related crimes without hindering legitimate massage establishments and their massage therapists.

The Michigan Legislature declared that the practice of massage therapy is an activity affecting the public interest and public health, safety, and welfare. The Massage Therapists Act, MCL 333.17951, et seq. was enacted to prohibit an individual from engaging in the practice of massage therapy or using certain titles without being licensed under the Public Health Code; to establish minimum educational and experience standards for licensure; and to require continuing education courses as a condition for license renewal.

The proposed amendments to the licensing code will include, officials said, a clean up of the existing licensing code for massage parlors; defining massage establishments and providing for exemptions to the Special Land Use and licensing requirements for specific uses, and the addition of requirements and regulations for applications, licenses and operations.

Police caution residents about restrictions on use of fireworks

As Independence Day celebrations approach, Westland officials are reminding residents of the restrictions on fireworks in the city.

The city ordinance that governs the use of fireworks was changed by members of the council in June, 2019 to align with the Michigan State Firework Safety Act of 2018. The state rules now allow more municipal control of fireworks.

Officials said that the issue generated a significant number of complaints from residents each year, particularly during the warmer months.

"This amendment is aimed to address and alleviate citizen's frustrations and concerns for our friends and neighbors who have bad reactions to fireworks," officials said at the time the new ordinance was approved.

> "This amendment is aimed to address and alleviate citizen's frustrations and concerns for our friends and neighbors.

The adopted amendment to the city ordinance reduces the number of days and time allowed for fireworks to 12. Fireworks can only be ignited during the hours between 11 a.m. and 11:45 p.m. except Dec. 31 when they are permitted between 11 a.m. and 1 a.m. on Jan. 1.

The 11 a.m. until 11:45 p.m. restrictions are in effect on the Saturday and Sunday immediately preceding Memorial Day and on each of those holidays; on June 29 to July 4 and on each of those holidays; on July 5, but only if that date is a Friday or Saturday and the Saturday and Sunday immediately preceding Labor Day and on that holiday.

Each violation will now result in a civil infraction with a fine of $1,000.

To report the misuse of fireworks in Westland, contact the Westland Police Department non-emergency phone line at (734)722-9600.

Outdoor dining rules eased

Members of the Westland City Council have increased the seating for al fresco dining in the city.

During the June 15 meeting, council members approved a resolution to allow temporary waivers for outdoor dining establishments. The resolution will exempt temporary outdoor dining areas from the temporary use requirements and procedures governed by city ordinances.

"Prior to the approval, temporary outdoor dining areas were approved through the site plan or temporary use process, both of which can require lengthy approval periods," commented Mayor William R. Wild. "This resolution will allow us to handle these requests administratively, resulting in a quicker approval for our dine-in establishments that have been negatively impacted by COVID-19."

The temporary waiver will continue through Oct. 31 and will allow restaurants to open and increase dine-in capacity while maintaining appropriate social distancing.

The resolution authorizes the building director, planning director and fire marshal to review and consider the request based on location of outdoor seating in relation to the design, layout availability of parking and other pertinent site and business information.

The temporary outdoor dining waiver may be terminated by the planning director if any requirements and conditions of approval are not followed and/or if the property is the subject of nuisance violations or multiple complaints.

Applications for businesses seeking a waiver can be found at www.cityofwestland.com

Inkster - Romulus

Romulus financial report may show huge gain

Members of the Romulus City Council heard some good news and a word of caution during their virtual meeting last week.

Auditor Brian Quinn explained that the coronavirus pandemic had a serious effect on financial markets and the results of that effect were coinciding with the quarterly financial report for the city.

He explained that during times of financial stress in the stock markets, securities become more and more desirable to investors who tend to pull their funds from riskier investments.

"There is a flight to quality and investors take money out of the U.S. stock market to treasury bonds which bumps up the price as they are more desirable," he explained. Added to that is the reduction in interest rates by the Federal Reserve and the purchase of securities by the federal government, which becomes the safety net for investors. Those factors, he said, provoke a higher rate of interest paid on securities, which become more in demand, and affect the city portfolio.

> The city will see a significant gain on the June 30 report and $402,000 will hit the income statement.

"There will be a significant impact on the city interest earnings," he told the council. "The city is practicing safe investing," he said, "but there are wild swings in market value which have to be a record," Quinn said.

"The city will see a significant gain on the June 30 report and $402,000 will hit the income statement," he said.

He explained that because of the market swings, part of that income could disappear in the next quarter because of the wild swings the financial markets are experiencing.

"You can't plan on that money," he told the council members, "it could evaporate."

Quinn told the council members that he wanted to explain the large gain to them personally before the quarterly report was submitted for their review.

Barrage of gunfire leaves 1 dead, another injured

A 27-year-old man was killed by gunfire and another man wounded last Wednesday morning on the 28000 block of Glenwood Street in Inkster.

According to reports from the Michigan State Police, troopers were called about 1:20 a.m. to the area near Cherry Hill and Glenwood after reports of a shooting. Inkster police had received reports of the incident at about 1 a.m., officials said.

When Inkster police officers arrived on the scene found a white Chevrolet Traverse parked on the north side of Glenwood Street facing westbound, riddled with bullet holds, according to Michigan State Police reports. Officers found the 27-year-old man deceased behind the wheel in the driver's seat of the vehicle.

Police said more than 50 shell casings were recovered at the scene.

A man and a woman, who witnessed the shooting, drove themselves to a nearby hospital, police said. Medical personnel determined that the man had suffered non life-threatening injuries. The woman was not injured in the shooting, according to police and medical reports.

Preliminary investigation reports indicate that this was not a random shooting, although investigators could not find any witnesses as the neighborhood was canvassed by police. According to police, neighbors said the sound of fireworks apparently masked the sound of the gunfire in the altercation.

Police did not release the names of any of the parties involved in the incident.

Police said that the investigation is continuing.

Tour

County police chiefs and the community to learn from each other. Through these open dialog forums, the police chiefs will be able to gain a greater perspective from our communities of their specific concerns.

"While doing so, the community will have the opportunity to see and hear firsthand how many Western Wayne County Police Departments have already implemented the training, the policies and early warning systems that the community is asking for. Moving forward, the Listening Tour will give us an excellent opportunity to create the model of community partnership for the rest of the Nation to follow," he said.

The first meeting of the Listening Tour took place yesterday and the date for the next meeting, officials said, will be announced soon.

Romulus Mayor LeRoy Burcroff and Interim Police Chief Robert Pfannes also attended the event. Burcroff said he hopes to make Romulus a stop on the listening tour.

"Listening and being heard are two different things. Being heard is understanding the words, the meaning and what needs to happen-and we plan to do just that," he said.

"This tour is a great opportunity for police departments and residents to speak openly about creating partnerships that benefit the community," Burcroff added.
